

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL.

BY MCCLANAHAN, TROUSDALE & DILL.

MEMPHIS, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1860.

VOLUME XI. NUMBER 20.

Daily Appeal

SPEECH OF SEN. JNO. V. MCCLAIN,

OF TENNESSEE,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, January 10, 1860.

Mr. Wright. Mr. Clerk, when interrupted,

I was remarking that I would not have trouble you to repeat the remarkable speech of my colleague from the mountain State of Tennessee, [Mr. Seward] delivered in this Hall, on the 2d Monday in January, 1860. Where is he now?

The Democratic, which had been opposed by the Black-Republicans in the North, was represented by a host of noisy mem-bros, from the members of organization in the House. On the other side at the Black-Republicans, nothing but the Representatives of the Southern Opposition. The country was interested at Harper's Ferry, and all the world was interested in the discussion of affairs, the Representatives of the Anti-Slavery party, by a Black-Republican and Abolitionist, who were the only ones in the House.

On the first day of the meeting of Congress, the Democratic party, though in a feeble position, every member of which, save one, is a strong and decided friend of the cause he exsists here! I do not mean that we had the right to expect much from our enemies,

Mr. Seward, however, did his best to give us determination; but, in this case, for our consideration, that of the southern Slaveholders, parties, every member of which, save one, is a

sists here!

But you say Mr. Gilmer can get Black-Republican votes, and these sentences [Mr. Seward]

Went, let that fact go to the credit of the Democratic party, but, with many other difficulties, it will be difficult to get any more from him.

But, Mr. Wright, I am not so much interested in the politics of the South, as in the politics of the North, and in the politics of the whole country.

Mr. Wright. I understand that you are interested in the politics of the South, but, I am not so much interested in the politics of the South, as in the politics of the whole country.

Mr. Wright. And yet, you say that you are interested in the politics of the South, but, you are not interested in the politics of the whole country.

Mr. Wright. And yet, you say that you are interested in the politics of the South,

but, you are not interested in the politics of the whole country.

Mr. Wright. And yet, you say that you are interested in the politics of the South,

but, you are not interested in the politics of the whole country.

Mr. Wright. And yet, you say that you are interested in the politics of the South,
